Quotations at Minneapolis, Baltimore and Cincinnati.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7 .- It was impossible to inject any life into the pit to-day, even with a bit of threatening war news thrown in. The local market was in the field alone, Chicago and New York having closed on account of Labor day. The local speculative market was practically in a condition of desucted, and but for the necessity of a cash market there would have probably been no session of the board The opening this morning was at 94c.

----Sweet Cream Butter.

The market demand is for soid cream butter. In a limited way sweet cream butter is wanted for private families, restaurants and hotels with a certain line of guests. What the market demand will be in time is a matter of speculation. If the public comes to see that the true flavor of butter is not a result of cream made sour and the "nutty" flavor made sharper by salt, sweet-cream butter may come to the front; but until it does, the money is in the finest possible ripened-cream butter. No, milk should not stand until sour before the cream is taken off. There can be no cream coming to the surface through thickened sour milk. The moment the lactic acid threads begin to form no cream can pass through the meshes. Cream taken from sour milk is ready to churn the moment it is off the milk. It is difficult to hold such milk any length of time without injury to the quality of the butter.

Bolted Tires.

Practical Farmer. Why not fix the tires so they cannot slip off? Bolt them on. When I had my wagons made and the tires bolted on, some said: "You will spoil your wheels. The tires will get loose, and, being bolted so they cannot run off, you will neglect to get them set.' Well, perhaps I am such an idiot. Haven't been put to the test yet. Tires have not got loose. We soaked the rims in hot linseed oil before the tires were put on, and keep the wheels well painted, and that is the end of the matter. One wagon has been in use some twenty years. It has worn out one set of tires, but none have ever got loose. The wheels are as good almost as ever. Not even a new spoke has ever been duced in the United States annually. Only a fraction is economically harvested; even less is saved, and considerably less is utilized by the animals, owing to the faulty way in which it is fed. It has been demonstrated beyond cavil that when fed with nitrogenous food—clover hay, cow peas, wheat bran, oil cake, cottonseed meal, etc.—corn-fodder has a feeding value equal to 90 per cent of the same weight of timothy hay. If timothy hay is worth $10 per ton it is safe to say that every year there is wasted in this country corn-fodder of the value of $500,000! This vast waste should be prevented by giving more attention to the curing of corn-fodder and its preservation. duced in the United States annually. Only

To Get Rid of Thistles.

Germantown Telegraph.

The secretary of the New York State Agricultural Society kills thistles thus: Have the land seeded to clover, and by top dressing with plaster, ashes, or some means get a growth of clover. When it is in full bloom, and the thistle shows a blossom, mow and make, thistles and all, into hay. Then apply a little plaster to start the growth of clover. This will come quicker than the thistles. When the clover has a good start, from July 20 to Aug. 5, plow all land and cover all growth. Roll and harrow to cover every thistle. Few will show after this. When thistle. Few will show after this. When they do, cultivate thoroughly with a cultivator having broad sharp teeth to cut them off under the ground. In two days go over with a sharp hoe and cut off what has escaped. Keep using the hoe and culti-vator until freezing weather. By plowing this field, just before freezing, the land will get in the finest condition for a spring

Farm Notes. Vinegar is better than water for moisten-

Strictly speaking, a road is not passable when it is not at all times (wet or dry, hot or cold) in the best condition for both horse and load, and this desirable feature is not found in any of the high, round-up stone or gravel pikes .- Ohio Farmer. The rules that apply to beef cattle will be found to apply also to poultry raised for their flesh. A fowl, to be profitable for this purpose, must be "near the ground," that is, the legs should be short and thick. It does not pay to feed long-legged fowls for

Foot-rot destroys more sheep than any other disease, yet foot-rot may be avoided by keeping the sheep on dry locations and paring the hoofs occasionally. It is a disease that is induced by wet ground, and may be carried from one field to another by the sheep.

The horse that is given rest regularly on Sunday will soon learn to know when his holiday arrives and will appreciate it. Habit is a matter of education. Animals learn the exact time for receiving meals, and will appear at regular hours if they have been fed regularly. As an antidote for consumptive tendency could never have done so with scrubs. This is true with regard to beef cattle, hogs and sheep. Concentrated foods should never be fed exclusively. To keep stock on grain, with but little grass or hay, will result in deranging the digestive organs. This applies also to the hog, which sometimes is kept exclusively on grain. A neg that is given a variety will fatten more rapidly than one fed wholly on corn, as its digestion will be more perfect.

A strong solution of extract of licorice destroys the disagreeable taste of aloes. Peppermint water disguises the nauseons taste of Epsom salts. Milk is a good abater of the bitter taste of Peruvian bark, and cloves that of senna. Castor oil cannot be tasted if beaten thoroughly mixed with the white of an egg. Another method of covering the nauseous taste of castor or cod-liver oil is to put a tablespoonful of orange juice in a wine glass, pour the oil
